Roosevelt Orders Anti-Jewish Laws Revoked in Africa

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt told his press conference this week that he has asked the abrogation of all anti-Jewish regulations in North Africa and the freeing of all political prisoners of Vichy. In a prepared statement, he said:

"I have requested the liberation of all persons in Northern Africa who have been imprisoned because they opposed the efforts of the Nazis to dominate the world, and I have asked for the abrogation of all laws and decrees inspired by Nazi governments or Nazi ideologists."

Eisenhower Promises To Reinstate African Jews

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

LONDON—A promise that the Jews in North Africa, deprived of their rights by the Vichy anti-Jewish laws, will soon be reinstated in these rights, was given by General Eisenhower to a Jewish delegation, the American-controlled Algiers radio announced.

The delegation, composed of representatives of Jewish organizations, was received by the commander of the American Expeditionary Forces and discussed with him the effect of the Vichy laws on the Jews in Algeria and other countries of French North Africa. General Eisenhower assured them that all these laws will be abolished. The Rome radio reported that the delegation was led by the Chief Rabbi of Algiers.

Jewish Council Thanks Roosevelt

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency

NEW YORK — The General Jewish Council, in a telegram sent this week to President Roosevelt, expressed its gratification at the President's statement announcing the abrogation of all Nazi-inspired decrees in Northern Africa and the liberation of all political prisoners of the Vichy regime.

Contemplation of Inequalities Incites Article on True Democracy

EDITOR'S NOTE: Larry Frommer of Indiana University is the author of the following plea which appeared in the Hillel "Banner" for November.

By LARRY FROMMER

IS IT NOT paradoxical that in a society that stands for freedom and liberty that there should be such a feeling of antipathy toward a national minority group?

I refer particularly to the democratic society which we have here in the United States. For now we are at war with the enemies of democracy. We shout democracy to the rooftops. We become immersed in the jingoism of the word, but so very few of us really practice it.

An outstanding member of our history department tells of a time when he was in Indianapolis eating at a downtown restaurant. Three boys in uniform came in and sat down. The manager came over and whispered something in their ears and they walked out. The Professor went up to the manager and asked her why she didn't permit those boys to eat there. She answered with, "They can eat in the kitchen." For you see, readers, those boys were colored—theirs was a stigma attached. Of course they were good enough to get out and fight for the interests of that bigoted manager, but they weren't good enough to eat in her restaurant!

And this is only one graphic instance of the hatred and racial persecution which is so abundant in our country today. One has only to glimpse at the big cities with their race riots, unequitable charging of fantastic rents to Negroes, and the general exclusion of the race in general from "our society."

Our society!—what a pompous, supercilious expression that is. How many of our forefathers ran away from their countries so that they would be free to worship and to live as they wished. And yet we forget that. We forget that once our very ancestors were persecuted, not wanted and shunned by the society of that day. And yet how quickly we forget, how quickly we are prone to persecute.

Many of us ask the question: Would you marry a colored person? Would you live with one? This question is so foolish. People who ask it miss the point entirely. For you see you don't have to marry or live with a colored person. But the colored person should have the opportunity to make something of himself. He should have the opportunity to travel, to live a social life, to make a good living. Whether he flukes the opportunity or not is immaterial. But he should have it.

We often boast of the progress made by the white groups in contrast to the Negro. Such a comparison is faulty. Think of the superabundance of opportunities that they have had—all of the prejudice which they have not had to bear. Is it any wonder that the Negro has no great ambition? It has been robbed from him with few exceptions; everytime he had "vaulting ambition." He was stymied even before he got a decent start.

And that is, what you call democracy. That is what you are fighting for. That sort of stuff bears the taint of Mr. Schickelgruber and his cohorts from Rome and Tokyo. And while you are fighting the war against the Axis, good people, you might well be waging another war against oppression of minorities such as the Negro. For in case you haven't already heard—that is the real battle for democracy.

CANNIBALS CAN'T WORRY SOUTH BEND SOLDIER STATIONED IN NEW GUINEA

The following letter has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Barney Sandock of South Bend from Lt. Theodore Arlook, now with the Medical Corps in New Guinea.

Dear Friends:

Just a word or two to let you know that all is well with me here in New Guinea altho I can think of better places to live than the jungle here.

I was in Australia for a few months before I came here and visited (censored) both nice cities. The people were very lovely to me and the hospitality is something I shall long remember. Enjoyed the winter climate likewise.

Here where I am we listen in to KGEI of San Francisco every night and learn what is going on in the world.

The natives here are very primitive but have high morals. There are no white people except we soldiers. The natives are friendly. Some tribes are cannibal but I'm sure we don't have to worry about that. The wild life of the jungle is plentiful—mostly small game. There are innumerable insects and flowers and birds with very lovely calls. I shall miss the birds and flowers some day.

Will have lots of interesting things to tell perhaps that I can't write about after I get back. Am glad to have this interesting experience but hope it won't be too prolonged. Meanwhile will do our darndest and know you will in U. S.

Best wishes,

TED.

Mr. Louis Rappaport has received his commission as captain in the U. S. Army and will leave soon to take up his duties.

TOWN CRIER remembers the lady who wanted to subscribe to The Post on condition that we would wrap her copy. It seems that she lived in an apartment house and didn't want her neighbors to know she was Jewish. And now the same incident happens again but from a soldier. His mother had asked us to send him the paper sometime ago, and evidently he enjoyed it, until last week while he was away, one of the boys living with him picked up his mail. That let the cat out of the bag for he had not taken the trouble to advise his comrades that he was Jewish. So his mother relayed his request to not send the paper to him anymore. His mother did say that the friend had declared, Oh, I didn't know that you were Jewish!

RABBI FELIX A. LEVY of Chicago, whose sermon on the "secession" in the Reform rabbinate provided an editorial for us last week, must draw a fine attendance. He is alert enough to know that he should keep his subjects current, and try to answer the many problems vexing Jews today. Anyhow his sermon for last Friday night was "Are Jews Irreligious," and in his advance notice had this to say about the subject:

"Catholics say that 80 per cent of their followers attend services. Protestants claim 70 per cent for themselves. On the basis of Synagogue membership and attendance, experience of chaplains in the army, our proportion looks like 10 per cent. What is the significance of the figures?"

ALTHOUGH TOWN CRIER had heard about Minette Baum for years, it wasn't until the meeting of the executive board of the Ohio Valley Zionist Region here a week ago that we met her. She has been president of the Fort Wayne Zionist District for something like 18 years. Town Crier understands she has spent many months in Palestine. Mrs. John Tatelma of Terre Haute, my idea of a real Jewish woman, told me recently about the tea room that Miss Baum opened for the Australian soldiers who are stationed in Palestine. Miss Baum was in Jerusalem at the outbreak of the war and saw that no provision had been made to make the soldiers at home on their days off. So she opened the tea shop by her self, and soon the large attendance and gratefulness of the visiting soldiers convinced the Jewish authorities that Miss Baum was providing an almost essential service, so that now the project, which is still going although Miss Baum is back home, is being financed by the Jewish Agency, and others like it have been started in all principal centers of Palestine.

SONNY HAMMERMAN called Town Crier last week and wanted to pay for 20 subscriptions to The Post to be sent to 20 boys in the service. A very

To the Editor:

I read with a great amount of interest your column with reference to the list of candidates for "Indiana's Jewish Man of the Year."

The list of names represents the finest in Indiana. Every name bespeaks a man justly deserving an honored place in Indiana's Hall of Fame. I would unhesitatingly vote for each nominee on the list, and would even be tempted to vote more than once for several of the men on the list.

However, if you will permit me, I should like, without in the least detracting from the renown of the others to place one more name in nomination as "Indiana's Jewish Man of the Year"—the name of Julius S. Friedman.

Julius is not a man without faults. Many are the times he and I disagree, but I know the man. There is no halo hovering over his head. He is no angel. But he is so human that we can safely say that he is a great man in Indiana; so unselfish in his devotion and sincerity towards the Jewish and American cause that we do not have to pretend to bestow upon him the imaginary qualities and virtues of a super-human being. Julius Friedman belongs too much to the human touch, is too much a part of life, taking too much of an energetic and active part (even

Folded Transfers

Delay War Workers

There are many little things that transit riders can do to help in speeding war workers to their jobs.

One important transit tip of Indianapolis Railways is "DO NOT FOLD YOUR TRANSFER". Cooperation with this tip will save many minutes, and even hours, each day.

The local transit system issues about 50,000 transfers a day. When a number of patrons fold, roll or wad their transfers, the operator must unfold the transfer to see if it is proper. This takes time, and may be the cause of a war worker arriving late to his job.

When transfers are presented to the operator flat, just as they were received, the operator can quickly glance at the transfer and the entire vehicle full of riders can be on its way immediately.

The quicker that patrons can board a vehicle, pay their fare or present their transfer, the better. Such cooperation will assure speedier, more reliable and more comfortable service for all transit patrons, many of whom may be war workers whose job is vital to Victory.

AL SEGAL Speaks On

THANKS

YOUR MR. SEGAL considered what there was to be thankful for at this season. The fair abundance he had enjoyed most of his life had been quite reduced.

It was only the other day that he was made aware that even his automobile could no longer take him whithersoever he wanted to go. Until gas rationing, Mr. Segal practically had had the world, you might say; he needed but to press the starter and away he went to remote places. Now his sovereignty over space was about to be reduced to the limits of four gallons.

Yes, Mr. Segal had had an abundant life to be thankful for on other Thanksgivings of his years. On those days meat and bread were things in such superfluity that he took them for granted as he took for granted the air he breathed; sugar was like the sands of the seashore.

I do not mean to say that Mr. Segal had been truly grateful for these things. I guess true thankfulness can derive only from a former condition of not having had enough. As he looked backward, Mr. Segal could see that he had had too much of a good thing most of his life. Though a man of modest means, he had never lacked any of the essential elements of living comfortably.

True, he had uttered prayers of thanks on the formal occasions but these never were heartfelt utterances such as may come from a gentleman in Poland, when, at last, he gets enough to eat again. It was not like the thankfulness that gentlemen in Norway, in Greece and in Yugoslavia will feel and speak when, after these evil times, they look at abundance again.

At this Thanksgiving season, as he considered the things of which he had been deprived, Mr. Segal felt that he had never really been as grateful as he should have been. Indeed, though in the course of his long life he had seen many a Thanksgiving Day, this was actually the first one on which he savored the exquisite taste of gratitude. In the presence of reduced fare he could feel grateful for the abundance of the past. I myself thought this was all to the good of Mr. Segal's spiritual education.

Shortly his income was going to be reduced, too. How pleasant were the years when the fruit of his earning was practically all his in full, to spend as suited his vagrant fancy, or to save as his more miserly tendencies dictated. But soon the 5 percent would be taken from his wages even before the pay-check came to him, and what they would take from it in addition on March 15 was something on which Mr. Segal didn't dare let his mind dwell long.

Yet, as he thought of what to be thankful for, he could bow his head gratefully to think that, after all, there will still be something left over for him when they are through taxing him. There will be enough for the rent and enough to clothe his ungainly frame against the bitter winds, and what more need a man require when the earth shakes in a great upheaval and institutions topple and other men perish?

I can assure you that Mr. Segal wasn't obnoxiously pious in this thankfulness. He is a fellow who has a distaste for pietistic expression. He was only thinking, what the hell, it might be worse and, thank goodness, it isn't. It might be worse as in Czechoslovakia, in Poland, in Yugoslavia, in Greece, and, by the Eternal, we shall not let it get worse. Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition.

Americans had been reduced in the things of their stomachs and in other things of creature comfort, but they had been enlarged, too, Mr. Segal thought thankfully.

He had observed that in these past months America had come to mean something more than a first-rate boarding house. In this tragic year people had learned to know it as an institution that had to do with certain ideals. Liberty, democracy, justice, honor, all that.

Democracy was no longer a catch-phrase for election time speeches. It had taken on reality as a way of life of getting along with people. It had to do with Halloran who must be respected in his practice of the Catholic faith, with Levy whose being a Jew must be no cause for discrimination against him, with Negroes whose complexion must be no reason for denying his rights as a man.

Not that respect for the religious faiths, races and complexions of all men already was in practice. Goodness no! Mr. Segal was grateful just for the glimmering of respect and justice that he thought he could detect. Yes, he thought, out of this new understanding of democracy some light may be dawning.

(He is always looking for gleams of dawn and occasionally detects lights which may be mirages but he hopes not.)

He was grateful, too, for the vision of brotherhood that his poor old eyes thought they discerned in the darkness. He had been hearing people say that after this war there certainly must be a comity of the nations for the sake of lasting peace and that we mustn't run out as we did the last time. Otherwise, what was all the shooting about? What were men dying for if it was going to be the old mad dog kennel all over again. He had heard many saying this and Mr. Segal liked to think it was the authentic voice of brotherhood speaking.

The hearts of people did seem enlarged by this even while the gas in their tanks was much less and their incomes were about to be greatly reduced by taxes and they couldn't have all the sugar they wanted and didn't know how much longer their tires would hold out.

Mr. Segal thought this was something gained and something to be thankful for. He is one of those people who have the idea that a full tank isn't as important as some other things anyway.

On these meditations he made a full Thanksgiving of it.

SYNAGOGUE NOTES

Kislev 19, 5703. Shabbos Sidra Vayishlach. Weekly Portion: Genesis, 32, 4—36, 43; Prophets: Hosea 11, 7—12, 12.

Genesis—32, 25. And Jacob was left alone: and there was led a man with him until the breaking of the day. 32, 27 and he said: "Let me go, for the day breaketh" and he (Jacob) said: "I will not let thee go, except thou bless me." And he said unto him, "What is thy name?" and he said, "Jacob." And he said, "Thy name shall be called no more Jacob, but 'Israel,' for thou hast striven with g-d and with men, and thou hast prevailed."

Hosea 12, 6 and 7. "The Lord, the g-d of Lords, the Lord is his name. Therefore turn thou to thy g-d; keep mercy and justice and wait for thy g-d continually."—Rabbi Nandor Fruchter.

INADEQUATE lighting is often the cause of nervousness, fatigue, eyestrain and headaches. Eyes that work hard all day need easy seeing conditions at home so they'll be ready for the tasks of tomorrow.

Don't guess at the amount and quality of light you need for various home front tasks. Our Home Service Department, Riley 7622, will gladly check the lighting in your home free of charge. This service is available within the limits of rationing and government restrictions.

Honest writing whether of a literary style or not is always great writing. Just such a bit of unforgettable prose is the letter of Mrs. Helen Lakin in The Ohio Jewish Chronicle, published by Ben Neustadt, whose father was our own Rabbi Neustadt. The letter tells of the details of the death of Lt. Sanford I. Lakin of Columbus whose vessel was torpedoed and went down in a minute and a half in the South Atlantic as it headed for Africa as part of the huge force transported for the North African campaign. Here are the last two paragraphs from her stirring account:

"I last heard from my husband on Yom Kippur. The letter was written from Trinidad. He was in the highest of spirits and felt so cheered about being able to leave soon to take a crack personally at our enemy. He didn't mention the 'second front' but from what I could read between the lines, I knew he was going on a most dangerous mission. Like so many others, I do not want to believe that such a glorious spirit so full of purposeful living could really be gone. I can only ask all of my friends to help me pray to God for strength to carry out his mission against our enemy. I can only do so very little compared to what he did, but in my small way I know I must try and I must not fail.

"My loss was so much more than just husband. Sandy was my fondest, dearest and best friend. He gave me the full measure of sincere belief in mankind as he did to others whom he called his friends. He made me always see the truth and beauty in our every day (Continued in Last Column.)

A Charter for the Anglo-Jewish Press

THE FIGHT of the Jewish Herald-Voice of Houston, Texas against the establishment in that city of a Jewish Home for the Aged makes an excellent case in point for the Anglo-Jewish press of the nation as a whole. When first that local paper tried to point out that such an institution was not necessary, the prompt reply was a cancellation of subscriptions by the backers of the movement.

Still undaunted, the paper continued to point out that the Old Home today is generally recognized as the wrong approach to the problem of the care of the elderly, and that private homes have supplanted the established institution to the general satisfaction of all concerned, especially the people for whom the home is built.

The Houston problem reached an acute stage, with the result that this past week Rabbi A. H. Blumenthal of Temple Beth-El delivered himself of a letter to D. H. White courageous editor of the Jewish Herald Voice which might be considered the charter for Anglo-Jewish journalism in America.

"May I say in the first place, that this discussion demonstrates the manner in which your paper is serving the spirit of democracy and free discussion in the affairs of our Jewish community. By all means let's have such discussion in newspapers rather than behind closed doors. This is the American democratic way, and I want to congratulate you for raising the issue and opening the columns of your paper for a full discussion of the subject.

"I had hoped that our Jewish community had outgrown the childish stage of attempting to influence the publisher of a newspaper through the cancellation of subscriptions. That is a vicious attempt to stifle the freedom of the press, and I hope that some of your friends will see to it that you and the paper do not suffer because of your courage and integrity."

That Mr. White's suggestion for an impartial committee to consider the proposal is being adopted is not as important as is the fact that the place of the Anglo-Jewish press in that community as a force not unlike and certainly no less powerful and important than The Federation or the Jewish Community Council has now been established.

No Mortgage for New Hillel House

B'NAI B'RITH leaders throughout Indiana, and more specifically those concerned with the Hillel work of the Order are considering plans for a drive to raise $4500 to make the first payment on the splendid new home for Hillel at Indiana University which so opportunely has been made available just at this time. The fine edifice, formerly used as a sorority house, costs $13,000, of which sum almost $2,000 was raised at the Hillel Pilgrimage in a spontaneous outburst of enthusiastic giving.

The $4,500 will be sought to finance the deal, which will leave a $6,500 mortgage, but those in charge of the project are underestimating the high regard in which Hillel is held by the Jewish community of Indiana, and even by many who are not affiliated with B'nai B'rith. The entire remaining $11,000 should and can be raised by any number of methods, all of which will be successful, if only the leaders will set their goal to that end. There is no need (although many rabbis prefer a mortgaged temple because it gives the membership something to work for) why the Hillel House should be mortgaged and certainly the Jews of Indiana should not let this be so.

Let a drive be conducted, almost any kind, and not necessarily among B'nai B'rith members, and the $11,000 will be forthcoming, with as little effort as has any sum ever been raised in Indiana.

Current Comment

What Senator Reynolds of North Carolina Believes and Repeats About the Jews Told by The Hour.—The last issue of The Hour, commenting on the arrest by the FBI of the notorious Fascist Italian propagandist Domenico Trombetta, revealed that on April 20, 1939, Senator Robert Rice Reynolds had incorporated in the Congressional Record a violently anti-Semitic article supplied him by Trombetta. Last week, confronted by newspaper reporters with this story from The Hour, the Senator admitted the truth of our charge but defended himself with this statesmanlike comment about The Hour: "That's a yellow-dog backhouse sheet!" He went on to say that he would not hesitate to re-insert in the Congressional Record the anti-Semitic material supplied him by Trombetta—"every damn word of it!" said the Senator. Here are some typical excerpts from Trombetta's material: "The people are being made refugee-minded through the usual high-pressure propaganda sponsored by the interested party—the Jew. . . . They are systematically building a Jewish empire in this country instead of in Palestine. . . . Other nations in Europe, after the 'triste' experience of Jewish yoke, finally got wise to themselves and so, only good U.S.A. is left."

This anti-semitic propaganda, again endorsed by Senator Reynolds, came from the Fascist Italian Propaganda Ministry in Rome.

Zionist Answer To Nationalism Given by Rabbi Joseph H. Lookstein.—We are accused of loving humanity less because we love Judaism more. We are indicted on the count that our nationalism contradicts the essential universalism of our religion. Even our prophets are summoned to testify against us. Let us quit sermonics and homiletics and let us speak in accents bold. Anyone who dares the insinuation that Isaiah, Jeremiah, Ezekiel, Amos, Zach-ariah and Malachi were anti-Zionists, to use an anachronism, should spend more time in his study than on the rolling chairs of the Atlantic City boardwalk. For the moment it is of little concern what the latest census is on the number of Isaiahs who wrote that book. One thing is certain, that that universalist of universalists was a flaming and passionate Jewish nationalist, and that when he rebuked us it was as "a nation heavy with sin", and when he consoled us, it was as "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my nation". It was he who recognized, even in that ancient past, that there was no contradiction between universalism and nationalism. He, prophet of universal peace, champion of universal brotherhood, might be considered the forerunner of the ideal toward which our generation is striving—namely not the obliteration of national boundaries nor the eradication of national identities, but the integration of the peoples of the world into a family of nations under the fatherhood of God.

Of course, if by universalism is meant the dooming of a people to eternal homelessness, and the renunciation by that people for all time of its rightful place in the world, and its irrevocable resignation to the fate of a cruel and perpetual exile, then we will have nothing of it. If by universalism is meant that out of choice or compulsion we must remain the gypsies of the world, learned gypsies, honest gypsies, rich gypsies, but gypsies, then we will have nothing of it. If it be the intent of universalism that all peoples may sit, each under his vine and his fig tree, while Israel grovels in the dust, the helpless instrument of power politics, the perennial butt of the anti-Semite and the innocent pawn of the appeaser, then we will have nothing of it. Fortunately, universalism does not imply all of that for the Jew, and fortunately, too, that the world understands the definition of universalism a little better than some of the descendants of Isaiah.

MISSION HEAD SEES PROPHECIES FULFILLED IN ZIONISTIC EFFORTS

To the Editor:

I was amazed and deeply impressed with the article in your issue of this week concerning the declaration of 733 rabbis in favor of Zionism.

This, alongside of the Associated Press dispatch of this week concerning a proclamation favoring a Jewish army in Palestine, fits so perfectly into the oft-repeated prophecies of the Bible that I could not help but use it as the basis of my radio message yesterday, using particularly Isaiah 11:9-13, especially verse 11: "And it shall come to pass in that day that the Lord shall set his hand again the second time to recover the remnant of his people," etc.

I also made reference to chapters 2, 35, 40 and 43 of Isaiah which are only a few of the multiplied statements in both the Old and New Testaments that Zionism is a part of God's plan for Israel—that they will some day be re-established in their national home in Palestine and that they will play a prominent part in Armageddon.

Sincerely yours,
HERBERT EBERHARDT, Sup.
Wheeler City Rescue Mission.

living. At this time I am nearly crazy with grief, but I know that as time will pass his fine spirit will calm me and guide me thruout the trying days that lie ahead."

I have received some very confidential information, including some telegrams and copies of letters, which I am very sorry I cannot reprint for you. This material comes to me, I believe, as a result of the editorials I wrote on one organization holding up the whole works on unifying the civic-protective agencies which include the Anti-Defamation League, the American Jewish Congress, the American Jewish Committee and the Jewish Labor Committee. It seems that I have been right on more than one score. Not only did I hit the nail on the head in that editorial naming the recalcitrant organization which seems to put its own welfare above that of the Jews of the United States, but I also seem to have been right in declaring that it would require force, or pressure if you will, to bring the groups together. Any way I believe I can say that the threat of bringing the matter out into the public has already been made, and just for the records I might add that if the delaying tactics of that one man became known there would be the biggest uproar in American Jewish life that you or I ever saw.
